

REARRANGE

It's time to turn the wheel

I'm walking out of here

I am sailing while I sleep

To a shore unknown

Where the wind has blown

The answers I've been looking for

I raise my hands and wave

Now the wind does change

Raindrops are falling on my head

An autumn rain so long

Now the light has gone

Leading all the way back home

I praise the one who made

Mankind believe in faith

But I am drowning in my pain

How do I rearrange

The puzzles that have changed

The pieces of my lifelong game

Some pieces walk away

Looking for better days

Some are sailing in the rain

With grace and full of fame

They should come back again

And solve the hidden puzzle plan

How do I rearrange

The puzzles that have changed

The pieces of my lifelong game

It's still the same old game

The pieces always change

I'll be sailing all life long
